

Telvent to Implement Modern IT Solution for Dallas Water Utilities

Telvent collaboration with Prime Controls will help Dallas Water Utilities increase efficiencies, cut costs and protect infrastructure

(Month) (Day), (Year) – Telvent (NASDAQ: TLVT), the leading real-time IT solutions and information provider for a sustainable world, announced today that it will collaborate with Prime Controls to implement a cutting-edge data technology system for the City of Dallas Water Utilities.

With this solution, Dallas Water Utilities will be able to gather a more accurate analysis of data critical to its operational decision-making and react more quickly when unforeseen situations arise within its growing network. Furthermore, the Telvent OASyS Dynamic Network of Applications system's highly developed security measures protect the city's fresh water infrastructure and meet the latest Department of Homeland Security standards.

By integrating the Telvent technology with its software, Dallas Water Utilities will have increased control capabilities throughout its water network, as well as remote monitoring and automation for multiple pump stations, elevated tanks and water meter stations. This will provide a wider range of up-to-the-minute information, cut unnecessary costs and enhance customer service capabilities.

According to Telvent's CEO, Ignacio Gonzalez, "We are pleased to combine our technology with Prime Controls' capabilities to increase efficiencies for the City of Dallas. This offers Dallas Water Utilities a modern and reliable system that enhances daily operations and cuts operating costs."

Telvent is responsible for system design, application engineering, software development and implementation of the SCADA platform, while Prime Controls is remodeling the system computer centers and managing the network and communications upgrade, system change-out and commissioning.
